Philip Sciranka is an Associate in Lubin Olson’s Litigation Practice Group. His practice specializes in complex commercial litigation with an emphasis on real estate, business torts, and contracts.

As a trusted advisor to clients across diverse industries, Mr. Sciranka regularly advises both private and public entities, as well as businesses in emerging industries. His representations have involved a variety of commercial disputes, including many sensitive business concerns, from contract disputes, trade secret theft, and technology, to land use issues, litigation and compliance work under the California Environmental Quality Act (“CEQA”), and other high-stakes real estate matters.

His experience in handling civil litigation cases includes filing and responding to complaints, motion practice, depositions, mandamus proceedings, and appeals. He also has opposed multiple preliminary injunction motions seeking to block construction of highly controversial projects and helped clients obtain favorable judgments in a range of cases.

Prior to joining Lubin Olson, Mr. Sciranka practiced in the litigation departments of Baker Botts LLP and Stradling Yocca Carlson & Rauth.
